

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am strongly motivated to apply to BCG because I consider the firm to be at the centre of the current global affairs. Furthermore, I believe that a job in strategic consulting will challenge me to invest all my attention and use all my skills, and therefore will allow me to get into a state of flow and accomplish all my assigned tasks and targets in a proficient manner.

I consider my good analytical skills to be extremely useful for a strategy consulting job at BCG because they will help me gather data and extract useful information from it in a fast and efficient manner. My background in Computer Science, coupled with my Mathematic skills have always helped solve tasks which had a high level of uncertainty quickly and correctly and will now allow me to quickly adapt to new situations.

Another aspect of my personality which I consider to be highly relevant to the job is my cooperative nature because of which I was always able to develop rapport quickly. On top of that, I have always been empathetic towards the people I was working with or working for, which led me to establishing successful long term relations. My social skills have been strongly improved by my previous internship in the banking sector, where I understood how to work with the clients such that their expectations are met above and beyond.

My previous work experience coupled with the networking I have been actively pursuing brought me to the conclusion that BCG is the best opportunity for my future career, as it offers a highly demanding environment which will make me act at the best of my abilities.

Yours sincerely,

Octavian Tuchila
